ABOUT CHRISTIAN ETHICAL INVESTING

This portfolio contains carefully selected investment vehicles using our Christian Ethical criteria, which is fully underpinned by our seven Christian Pillars.

The pillars are linked to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Epworth supports the utilisation of the SDGs, but feel that without a robust theological underpinning, they risk being misused by corporations or organisations attempting to appear ethical.

INVESTMENT MANAGER COMMENTARY

"After a bumpy start, this was a quarter where global equity markets were firm with investor concerns around inflation and interest rate policy abating amid some less hawkish rhetoric from central banks. It was again another strong quarter for the much vaunted "Magnificent Seven" albeit with some significant variation within this cohort. Pleasingly, positive performance was also evident across most equity sectors and we saw a strong rally in global small and midcaps from February. This environment was a helpful backdrop for sustainably oriented managers given their thematic approach tends to focus on small and midcap companies solving environmental or social challenges.

The quarter saw particular focus on water scarcity as an environmental challenge the world is struggling to contend with. Countries like Mexico have had to adopt rationing in certain areas. While this issue has long been an endemic problem in emerging economies, over the past 12 months scarcity challenges have also been seen in both Europe and the US. Ultimately we have a nature based constraint on access to water. While a large chunk of the world's surface is covered by water, a small percentage of that is useable by agriculture or industry, and an even smaller amount is drinkable. Weather related challenges make this even more acute. Companies making products and services that help improve this dynamic are becoming increasingly important economic actors.

The strongest performing areas of the portfolio this quarter were varied with themes like healthcare, water and waste management, and robotics and AI performing well. We added to our highest conviction technology manager in January, and introduced a new more defensive equity manager in March. We continue to believe in the long term prospects for the innovation in the sustainable themes our managers target."
