ABOUT CHRISTIAN ETHICAL INVESTING

This portfolio contains carefully selected investment vehicles using our Christian Ethical criteria, which is fully underpinned by our seven Christian Pillars.

The pillars are linked to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Epworth supports the utilisation of the SDGs, but feel that without a robust theological underpinning, they risk being misused by corporations or organisations attempting to appear ethical.

INVESTMENT MANAGER COMMENTARY

"Despite considerable volatility in both early August and early September, we arguably saw a more "orderly" backdrop for investors this quarter. The equity pattern from early July saw a broadening out of equity performance beyond the much publicised "Magnificent Seven" megacap stocks. We saw strong performance in more defensive sectors like healthcare, utilities and consumer staples, better performance in small and midcaps, and a more challenging environment for megacap technology stocks. We also saw bond markets prove robust and offer portfolios attractive defensive characteristics during the equity wobble. A market that finally saw the much anticipated cuts in interest rates from various central banks seemed relieved the inflation concerns of the past few years were abating.

This backdrop proved a more constructive one for sustainable investors, with relative underweights to megacap technology and relative overweights to smaller companies proving to be beneficial. The strongest performing areas of the portfolio were the exposures to water and waste management and oncology themes which proved to be very resilient during the equity market volatility of early August. We also saw strong performance from our infrastructure investments which benefitted from the market rotation into more interest rate sensitive sectors like utilities.

Climate policy has been notably absent from the various public battles between the two candidates for the US Presidency this November but arguably the combination of clarity on who is in charge of the world's biggest economy and the broader effects of interest rate cuts should provide a degree of comfort for investors in this space. Energy transition spending continues to be very strong. According to the International Energy Agency (IEA), global investment in clean energy is likely to hit nearly $2tn this year. This is more than was spent in 2023 and nearly double the amount that was spent on fossil fuels."
